Found Poem by Hanna

Layers of biological treasure
With untold potential
Engines of oxygen
Regulating system

A troop of howler monkeys
Their thundering voices
Roar in chorus

Warm temperatures
And high humidity
Dense canopy
Left untouched by natural disaster!
Like steel of axe or chains tooth

Battles for sunlight on leaves
Canopy competitors
Trees break through the roof
Many vines ferns and orchids
Species rich

Colourful attractive fruit
Tree fall gap choked with vines
Berries signal birds

Still...
Under attack

At an
ALARMING RATE

Original Text by David Ross